You've got something important to say about urban design! Let CharretteCenter.com help you share it with the world.

Theory Meets Practice - TMP Series

Theory Meets Practice is a series of articles published through CharretteCenter.com. The focus of these articles is to tie urban design theories to the practice of urban design. The goal of this series is to show how the theoretical framework of design and public participation in which many urban designers work is put into practice to successfully create quality communities. We at CharretteCenter.com and the contributing authors hope that this internet 'magazine' framework can help us share our experiences and our ideas with people around the world, to help foster more democratic planning processes to create better places to live.

TMP Articles

Publish an article at CharretteCenter.com. Send your article about the design process, urban design in general, or a specific design project to CharretteCenter. We benefit by having more quality information at our site, you benefit from the traffic that our reputation brings to the site, and our visitors benefit from having a wider variety of quality articles on the design process and general urbanism. CharretteCenter.com will present your article in different ways depending on relevance to existing subjects.

Publishing an article with us is free.

TMP Collections

Once you've published more than one article on the same theme through CharretteCenter.com, you may want to consider publishing your own data collection.

CharretteCenter.com will set up and host a page of your articles under a "TMP Collection:" link. This page will follow the same basic format of other collections, and there can be an internet alias created (i.e. www.charrettecenter.com/yourname)

You may also want to allow others to publish articles under your "TMP Collection:". Let us know if you would like CharretteCenter to help fill out your Collection with complimentary articles from other authors.
